

THE INFORMER

Christmas Contest upcoming

The Christmas Office Decorating Contest which was so remarkably successful last year will be held again this Christmas, so start thinking creatively. The contest is being sponsored by Carling O'Keefe Breweries and the Coach House and will probably be judged at the Christmas Party which is tentatively scheduled for December 10. Who can outdo the Dean's Den and Business Management department this year? Consider it a challenge. And if you can help out with the Christmas party Sheree MacLean would appreciate some volunteers.

REC STUDENT REUNION

Next month there will be a class reunion at Capilano College. The Outdoor Recreation Management students are having their tenth reunion Friday November 13 and Sat. the 14th, which will give the students a chance to see each other again, and the department a chance to survey the progress of its grads. Saturday night the classes of 1972 through 1981 will participate in Outdoor Rec activities in the afternoon and a dinner/dance in the evening.

Reveley arranges Record

One can't help but suspect a touch of capitalist motives in the flyer sent to us by the music department on "Richard Loney-- Easy to Order Albums" and Carol McQuarrie's remark that they make great Xmas gifts, however it is true that the second album was produced by Mike Reveley and Loney, with songs arranged by Mike Reveley. Loney by the way, sings "O Canada" at Vancouver Canucks games here. If his two albums (the first is Christmas music and the second is popular gospel, old favorites, and new original songs) interest you at all, contact the Music Department.

October 19, 1981

Volume III No. 31

FREE!

Coming up Friday at 8:00 pm is the lecture on Nepalese Art by Brian Mulvihill, UBC Fine Arts researcher. This is a free lecture in the All College Lounge and open to any interested members of the college community and the public.

Detective Story

Mystery of the missing machines

Monday morning Oct. 5, the Social Sciences people came in to find two of their typewriters missing. So they phoned Ash Barton and found out that Ash had a report from the weekend security man that 3 windows and a door had been found open in the Social Sciences area. After determining that nobody had taken them home they phoned the police. From the reports of the security guard the police determined that the two typewriters had probably been taken from 2-4 Sunday. They took the serial numbers and off they went, while Social Sciences settled down, realizing that they were stuck two typewriters short and resigning themselves to probably never seeing them again. Here is where you would expect this story to end, but no! At 6pm that same day Ash Barton received a call at home. The police had found the two typewriters, and wanted him to come down and identify them. What service!! thought Ash, and we concur. The police deserve a pat on the back. The typewriters, incidentally, were stolen by 3 boys -- two from North Van. and one from Coquitlam. More information is unavailable pending charges and all. The moral of the story? Beware all aspiring thieves and vandals! Cap College and the Mountied will get you. (Fast.)

NEPAL STUDENTS GEAR UP

If anyone had told you a few years ago that the college would be sponsoring a field trip to Nepal, you very likely would have thought they were a little unhinged. But, in only a few months 30 students from age 19 to 57, along with instructors Terry Brown, Karen Lind, and Carole Stanley (Biology prof from UBC) will be heading to Nepal for 2½ months. Understandably they are getting rather excited about it. Right now the students are getting prepared intellectually and physically -- on the one hand by means of lectures on the economy, geography, art and religions of the land, and by their own readings, and on the other hand by working up their own personal fitness levels and hiking up the Lions on weekends. Since they are going to be hiking to an elevation of 18,000 feet in the Himalayas they'll need to be in shape. The courses that the students will be taking in Katmandu are Geography 249, Anthropology 249 and Biology 105. And in case you didn't know, the name of the university in Katmandu is Tribhuvan University.

Meeting Moved Back

For all of you who have just been dying to go to another AUCE General Meeting, you'll have to wait a week longer. It has been changed to Thursday, Oct. 22 at 4:30 pm in room B115/116. The change is this month only - meetings are otherwise scheduled on the third Thursday of every month.

Grads to play Blues

Saturday October 24 the college basketball teams play their grads at Delbrook gym and the games promise to be interesting. The women start at 6:30 pm, playing grads led by Theresa Smith, runner up in Totem Conference scoring last year, and three time MVP Lea Anne Stevens. Playing against them on the current Blues team will be veteran Janet Smith and rookies Clair Carter and Joy Elliott. On the men's grad team, playing at 8:15 pm, will be three former MVP's Phil de Vooght, Terry Cameron and Craig Freeman. Business Management grad Phil de Vooght won the Totem Conference scoring title last season, averaging 26.2 points per game. Also playing for the grads: former Carson Graham star Ron Barker and former all-conference all star Ken Sherk. On the current Blues team will be 3 year veteran David Lane from Argyle, Jon Deanna from Douglas College and Dan Mawson who transferred from Mount Royal in Calgary. Rookies to watch for, according to coach Neil Chester, are John Oberhoffner from W. Van, Jay Walter of Argyle and Randy Jones, Van. Tech. After the game there will be a social with old players and new and anyone from the college who wants to come along, watch the games and meet old students or friends is more than welcome.

Down South reopens

The Down South boutique is open once again in the lobby of the Tower building. Items made by art students and others are sold on consignment in the store--drop by some time at lunch hour.

Classified

LADIES SMALL WETSUIT - $175 or best offer, excellent condition 298-3361
(Note: this ad is late--sorry)